

VIMANA 2/1971

On 4th April I went with a couple of other UFO-interested people to investigate the so-called Kinnula case which is probably the most surprising Finnish UFO- and humanoid-phenomenon in recent times. On the basis of the investigations I made the following general report:

On Friday, 5th February, 1971, the young men Petter Aliranta, (21, and Esko Juhani Sneck, 18), from Kinnula were working in the woods at Kangaskylä, Kinnula, near the frontier of Central Finland and province of Vaasa. It was nearly 3 o'clock in the afternoon when they were finishing the work, because the cloudy day was gradually growing dim toward evening. Aliranta had just switched off his motor saw when he noticed at level with tree-tops a peculiar metallic-coloured object descending straight downward. It looked like two saucers against each other, perhaps about five metres in diameter. In the bottom part of the aircraft there were four thin (5 - 10 cm) which were over two metre long feet. In a moment the object descended on a small forest clearing at about 15 metres from Aliranta and Sneck. However, the latter had not yet noticed it, being concentrated on pruning a log.

In the middle of the bottom part of the air craft was a round opening which was visible already in the descending phase. As soon as the feet of the craft stood steadily on the ground a strange looking being hovered down from the opening. It really hovered for about two meters landing on a crust of snow. It did not fall to the ground in the normal way. The being, then, began to approach Aliranta. Its movements were very stiff and the steps short. The being, resembling a space man or a robot, was less than a metre tall - perhaps 90 cm - tall. He wore a green coverall. His head was covered by a protective cap, in the middle part of which there was a kind of lense pointing toward the direction the "thing" was going. The hands were with rounded ends, no fingers could be seen. The "boots" he wore were also green, fitting tightly the coverall.

The humanoid seemed to move in a peculiar way on the crust of snow: it did not sink into the snow as one would have expected. As the being was all the time approaching Aliranta (though rather slowly), he started in his anxiety the motor saw, and walked with it toward the odd being. Also Esko Sneck now noticed what was happening. The sound of the motor saw made him to look at what Aliranta was doing. "The little green man" and Aliranta were approaching each other - now the distance was less than 10 meters. Suddenly, the being turned around and started to walk back toward the saucer. This gave Aliranta more courage, so he hurried to catch the humanoid. Inside the saucer other beings were now visible: there also were three "windows" on the side of the craft (they were approx. a metre wide). In the right-hand window three human-looking beings could be seen moving. No details could, however, be seen. When Petter Aliranta was just about to catch the being at a distance of about 3 metres from the saucer, the humanoid rose in a peculiar way up to the air. Aliranta came in time to grasp with the right hand (it was bare) hold on the right-foot "boot" of the being. But, he had at once to release his hold as the foot burned as hot iron. Aliranta had burns on his thumb, index and palm, which were still clearly visible after still two months. At the same time Aliranta instinctively stepped back, so the being could undisturbed hover inside the craft. Immediately after the humanoid was inside the saucer, weak buzzing or humming was heard, and the craft rose slowly up to the air. Aliranta felt how the rising saucer caused a weak air flow, but no smoke or smell could be observed, nor a light phenomenon whatsoever. (During the incident the men saw no light in the craft). When the saucer rose upwards, the round bottom opening closed (but the "feet" were still seen) and in about 15 seconds the whole object vanished to the sky.

The eye-witnesses estimated that the visit of the queer craft lasted for several minutes, at least three minutes. Although the saucer had disappeared, the men could not speak a word, they just wondered. The limbs felt stiff, and it was difficult for them to move. It took nearly an hour before the men could get out of the forest. Before leaving they examined for a while the traces in the snow which were left as a token of this strange experience.

In the lower part of the four "feet" of the saucer there were what looked like round plates which on descent sank into the ground (there were 40 thick snow blanket on the spot). These plates left four round holes, 35 cm in diameter, forming a square with two metre long sides. Inside this square the snow had melted 5-10 cm from the surface. Also humanoid's footprints could be clearly seen. They were small (15 cm) and quite round. The space remained all the time the same (also during the chase): about 20 cm .

When the men a few hours after the incident came home and told of their experiences, nobody took them seriously. The folks at home thought that the "boys had inventend the whole story". True, Petter Aliranta had burns on his right hand, but these you can get anywhere. The story of a "little green man" was much too incredible. The next day Aliranta's hand was so sore that he could not hold an axe in the hand. Anyway, the men went to the forest as usual, because no other symptoms were felt. However, the working did not proceed quite normally as the men kept looking round more attentively as before. The fear caused by the incident gradually disappeared but two months later Aliranta still complained that he did not dare walk alone in the dark. They did not feel other aftereffects.

The investigations carried out did not reveal any such details that would have given cause to doubt the story of these young men. However, due to the negative attitude of the villagers (particularly their home folks) they did not want to speak to still other people of their experience. Therefore, by the time the word was spread of this case the traces of the decent were already covered under a half metre thick snow blanket.

On the same day 5 th of February, another UFO-case occurred at Kinnula . At 7.20 o'clock a forest worker, Pentti Piispanen saw a fire ball, about a metre in diameter, which hovered for two minutes above the tree tops. The sighting was made 15 kilometres away from the spot of descent at Kangaskylä. After Piispanen had come home he told of what he had seen to other people (for instance to a newspaper), but neither he, too, was not believed. Also other inhabitants at Kinnula saw unidentified flying objects and mysterious light phenomena during the winter 1971.

A CONTACT IN HELSINKI

The contactee N.N. in this report is a 47 year old man in Helsinki. The incident related below occurred on 17th October 1969 in the evening. N.N. had just come home, and was squeezing fruit juice at the wash-basin when something pulled him forward, first lightly, then vigorously, so that he had to take a few steps backward. At the same time he passed his hand over the chest and saw that a streak of light came from underneath his armpit and coiled around his chest. It measured about 6 x 2 cm. The streak was not transparent but clearly defined. On a black bottom bright golden yellow light spots were rippling lengthwise symmetrically and close to each other. The black bottom was visible only at very close look.

N.N. tried to wipe the ray away from his chest, but in vain. Neither could it be felt by the hand. N.N. turned around and saw at a distance of four meters and at a height of half a metre a bright, colourless light which could not be clearly defined, but grew dim on its edges at 10 cm width. The streak of light had its origin in the left lower corner of the dim part of this light.

N.N. heard friendly talk from the edge of the ceiling above the light: "We are from another solar system and we have something to tell you." N.N. passed by the light to open the window to see who was joking outside. Then, no light was visible. The voice said: "You open in vain, you do not see anything there!" N.N. thought this to be a joke too, went behind the table to sit down at 3 metres from the light.

- "Well, what`s then, just welcome here."

- "We have tried many times. You are finally alone." (N.N. was really alone for the first time for over a month). "We have arrived here on a big craft and it is at the moment behind the planet Mars. We cannot this time come nearer to Earth, for we know that the scientists of the Earth could observe it with their telescopes and it would create fear and panic in the men of Earth. At this moment we are in the Earth`s atmosphere. We have come here with a smaller device."

N.N. asked: "What is there on the planet Mars?"

"You will know it later", was the reply.

At this stage N.N. began to believe that this was not a joke, and asked: "Why do you contact just me?"

- "Because you belong to those men of Earth who are not afraid of us."

- "What makes you think so?"

- "Because we know you. We have followed you for a long time, although you do not know it yourself. Do not get surprised, for you are not the only one, by now we have got many acquaintances among the men of Earth."

- "Who, for example, do I know someone? For instance, who in Finland?"

"You will know later. We just ask that as soon as you have the opportunity, you spread information on us. Tell them of us this way: we exist and we wish good to the people and that they would neither make religions and legends nor fear campaigns on us, but stick to the facts regarding us. Do not force them to believe".

- "Is there not anything else that I could tell?"

- This time we will not tell you anything else, you will learn more next time."

- "I would like to see you in the same way as you know and see me: come to the courtyard."

- "It is not possible."

- "Come to that rock."

- "Not even that is possible."

- "There is a lot of space on the sports ground."

The voice did not reply and N.N. went behind the ice hall. Nobody came there for 10 minutes and N.N. thought: "Is it like this when one gets mad?" He walked very slowly back and after about an hour, when he came back, the same light lit on the same spot to ripple resembling the rippling of the air in sunshine. N.N. spent the light in the ceiling and sat down. At the same time the strike of light approached him slowly and coiled around his shoulders. The feeling was just as a draught on the shoulders which, however, did not draw.

N.N. began: "Finally, you did not come there."

- "We could not come, as there are so many dogs in Töölö."

- "What have the dogs of Töölö to do with where we meet?"

- "We investigated the situation there. It has something to do with it. The device with which we are moving can be made soundless and if needed also invisible, but it is emitting such a high-pitched voice that can be heard by animals, especially dogs, and we cannot eliminate this sound. Dogs become furious by hearing it. They can be dangerous and attack men."

"What is this thing?" N.N. asked and touched the streak of light by his hand, but did not feel anything. No reply was heard.

- "Let it then be whatever you like, at least it is a suitable massaging apparatus. Could you massage my back with it, My back has been ill lately."

The streak of light began to squeeze. It loosened, moved and squeezed again and continued this way through the whole back.

- "We will keep your back sane." After the massage the light got brighter.

- "Can't you reduce that light of yours, it hurts my eyes."

- "Does this suit you?" At the same time the streak of light began to squeeze hard.

- "Do not squeeze so hard, I'm suffocating." The grip returned as it was.

- How can we arrange that meeting?"

- "We have no time on this trip. We have to leave soon, as we have to stick to the timetable. We will come back after two years."

- "Why not until then? Why not sooner?"

- "The solar system where we come from and this are then in the most favourable reciprocal position. Come then to the desert to such a place where there are no people, nor domestic animals near you. We will come there."

- "How would you like it if I would smell of liquors or tobacco?"

- "It would not disturb us. It is no concern of ours, because it is a matter you can yourself deliberate."

- "Now tell us something." - A short pause.

- "We have to leave now, as we have agreed on a meeting in another place. Farewell."

Suddenly the streak of light did not exist any more and the light spent out as it had lit. Afterwards there was a slight smell of disinfectants on the spot.
